What We've Been Working On...

This week our main focus has been to stay as cool as possible!

The children have loved all the water play and have been very good considering we have had to limit their time outside.

In History we continued to learn about Florence Nightingale and Mary Seacole and looked through a box of historical artefacts. The Hedgehogs started their science experiment looking at litter in the ocean, they filled up bottles with a different material in each with water. They are going to check back on them through the rest of the term to see if anything has changed. Have a lovely weekend and try to stay cool in the heat!
